Chief Engineer's Report.

In submitting my fourth annual report as chief of the Department I will say that we have been very fortunate in regard to fires the past year, having had but one since my last report. That was the burning of the passenger station of the Boston and Maine Railroad, which occurred April 17th. The loss was covered by insurance.

The apparatus under my charge is in good condition and ready for service at any time.

The Department has started, by subscription and otherwise, a system of fire alarms which can be extended at any time and which I think will be a great benefit to the Department and to property holders, in sounding an alarm quickly.

In regard to the house for Hose Company No. 3. I have been unable to procure any land in a desirable locality as yet, and I would recommend that the money appropriated for the building be left in the treasurer's hands, hoping a location can be secured the coming season.

I desire to again express my thanks to my assistant engineers and to the members of the Department for the readiness with which they respond to their duties.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES E. WARREN,

Chief Engineer.

HYMN.

BENEDICTION.

With the opening of the new school year in September important changes in the instruction, arrangement of studies and valuable additions were made. Arithmetic and Reading were assigned to Miss Chase. The former, usually a dry and difficult subject for classes of girls, is rendered interesting and attractive. Frequent digressions from the text book with original and selected work are made, and the pupils are taught principles in a helpful and painstaking way. In the teaching of Reading a threefold end is sought —the development of the vocal powers by daily exercises, the attainment of a simple, appreciative style of reading, free from mannerisms, and the cultivation of a taste for good literature. Great pains is taken that pupils shall understand what they read; the beauties of an author are pointed out and the readers are encouraged to follow out the suggested lines of Geography, History, Travel, Familiar Science, etc., by means of reference books and pictures.

Languages with the First and Second grades, Geography and United States History are taught by Miss Baker. Very profitable and interesting devices and methods for making the study of Geography real are employed by this teacher. Modelling in clay and putty has been introduced in both classes. Outline maps of countries and states, published by D. C. Heath & Co., are furnished to each pupil and are of great service, not only in learning topography, but for locating products, animal habitats, etc. Another valuable feature is the teaching of pupils to classify their knowledge by tabulation. In the study of United States History the class is led much beyond the limits of the text book. The Fourth class having finished Arithmetic have recently taken up the study of Algebra with Miss Baker.

Miss Moulton instructs the Third and Fourth grades in Language. The latter class during the fall term were employed in English Grammar, analysis and parsing. We have recently added to this year's work elementary Rhetoric, and an introduction to the study of Literature, using Lockwood's "Elements of English."

Natural History has also been added to the course in the Third year, with Miss Cooper's "Animal Life in the Sea and on the Land" for a text book. Miss Moulton has greatly interested her pupils in this study and encouraged them to make collections of natural objects for illustration. Many specimens have already been donated to the school and I have given orders for a suitable case to be built and placed in Miss Moulton's room for their reception. Deep interest is felt and excellent progress made in Physiology and Ancient History. Composition writing has been taken up with the pupils of the Third and Fourth classes and will prove a very valuable feature. Miss Chase and Miss Moulton have recently brought together their Reading and Composition classes in a general Friday afternoon exercise, presenting a varied programme that was very creditable both to pupils and teachers. It is their intention in future to hold such exercises from time to time.

The Latin and Greek classes are under the instruction of Miss Sherwin with the same arrangement of studies as in former years, except that during the first half year the Senior and Junior classes have recited in Latin five times per week instead of four. Special attention is given to the acquiring of a vocabulary, readiness in sight reading and to the mastery of conditions. Enthusiastic in classical study and devoted to her college, Miss Sherwin has aroused a deep interest in the college preparatory work. The Greek class formed this year numbers five.

In addition to the work of former years Miss Rice is devoting more time to the study of English authors. In the Botany class, under direction of the teacher, the pupils will begin the preparation and mounting of specimens for an herbarium to illustrate the flora of this locality.

With my reading classes this winter I am giving time to the study of an English classic. The pupils are provided with Milton's Lycidas, upon the text of which I have prepared a series of questions on Syntax, Rhetorical Figures, Mythology and History. My purpose is to make our pupils acquainted with the riches in the literature of our own tongue and to accustom them somewhat to "laboratory work with a reference library."

At the beginning of the fall term Miss Rice examined and in part rearranged the books in the library. Of the lost and worn out volumes a portion have been replaced and considerable additions—in all about one hundred volumes—have and will be made during the year, including the Encyclopædia Brittannica with American Supplement, the Waverley Novels, In Darkest Africa, etc. We are purchasing some books that will be of special interest to the young pupils, and these during term time will be kept on the tables in the lower rooms, to foster habits of reading in the earlier years.

With the money which you placed at my disposal in September I have purchased a considerable number of needed appliances. Beside the new books in the library we have procured an Edison's Mimeograph on which all our examination and review questions are printed, a one-fourth objective for the microscope, a large number of ancient and modern maps, and a complete set of metric weights and measures. I have had all our maps mounted on spring rollers and placed in convenient boxes. Miss Baker's room has been adorned with a set of colored lithographs of geographical formations. A number of dollars have been expended for unmounted photographs illustrative of Ancient and Modern History, Geography and Reading. Many of these I have had mounted, framed in cheap but substantial oak frames and hung upon the walls of the English History room. I hope in this way to make instructive and beautiful the walls of the other school and recitation rooms, and to make year by year substantial additions to our general art collection. Miss Barrows now has in preparation a musical entertainment by her pupils, the proceeds of which will be devoted to this purpose.

I have replaced many of the old gas burners with new ones, much to the improvement of the lighting of the building. In the remaining weeks of the year I desire to improve the collection of minerals, especially those that illustrate the sources of metals and important chemical salts, and to make a small selection of fossils to use in my Geology class next term.

In accordance with your directions I have provided every pupil desiring them, with free text books.

The plan of an occasional lecture on Friday afternoons has been undertaken this year and has afforded rest, change, and broadening instruction to all the pupils. In the fall term, Dr. Durgin, of Newmarket, lectured on Iceland, followed in the winter term, by Hon. J. C. A. Wingate, of Stratham, on "A Visit to a Chinese City." On another Friday afternoon the Jubilee singers of Fiske University gave a concert.

In accordance with your vote to change the time of organizing and graduating Normal classes a new class of ten members was formed in September. The arduous task of instructing both classes during the fall term of fifteen weeks was undertaken very willingly by Miss Wiggin and carried through faithfully. On the 19th of December occurred the second graduation in this department. A large audience in the chapel listened to a very interesting programme. The diplomas were presented to the five graduates by Prof. George C. Purington, of the State Normal School, Farmington, Maine. His remarks were graceful, scholarly, and helpful to the young teachers. The third class will graduate in June on some afternoon of the week preceding Commencement week. This department is doing a work of the greatest value in giving to our graduates and others professional training, review of studies to be taught and that broadening discipline to be obtained by daily association with a scholarly, mature and womanly teacher. School superintendents in our vicinity are interested in these classes and more applications were received last spring than we had graduates to furnish. I desire to make additions to the curriculum and scope of this course as fast as our resources will warrant.

The plans for the new department of Domestic Science have been so recently submitted to you that I need devote but little space to them now. As implied in the name I intend that this department shall help our young ladies in preparing for their future responsibility of home making, teaching them to apply the principles of chemistry, physics and physiology to the affairs of the household and giving them some manual practice in the household arts. The instruction in cooking is now well under way with an elementary and an advanced course. The pupils are much interested in their work and many ladies from Exeter and adjoining towns have availed themselves of the opportunity to join the classes. The prizes for bread offered by Mr. Burlingame will prove a very important adjunct in stimulating an interest in practical cooking. In addition to cooking my plan contemplates instruction in the setting and serving of a table, care of linen and table furnishings, plain sewing and mending after the plan of French industrial instruction, and lectures on foods, sanitation, clothing, ventilation, house warming and lighting.

In the general curriculum of study I suggest some improvements to be made in the near future. It would be well to increase quite a little the amount of English Literature and of Modern History over what is now offered. To make room for this in the now crowded course, some studies will have to be dropped. In my opinion Astronomy can best be spared. Greek should be accepted as an elective with some other study covering the same time and number of recitations per year.

In closing I desire to thank you for your substantial encouragement to me in my work during the past year and for the opportunity you have given me and my associates to accomplish much in these months for the true advancement of our school.

GEORGE N. CROSS.

The additions to the Library during 1890-91 fully equal in number those of the previous year—about 500 volumes having been placed on its shelves. Specially noticeable features of this increase are valuable works of reference, and about fifty volumes from the library of the late General Marston. These have the double value of intrinsic merit, and of mementoes of the distinguished citizen whose autograph most of them contain. The constantly increasing use of the library by young and old is evidenced by the fact that new works worn out in circulation have often to be purchased. A frequent comparison of the shelves of the Boston Athenæum, which are devoted to the display of new books before putting them into circulation, has shown that while our library cannot keep up with the Boston institution in the number of its purchases, the lines of selection in the two places run closely parallel. The restriction of the Merrill fund to the choice of books of permanent value has enabled the Committee to procure a large proportion of those standard publications which can interest large classes of readers. In the meantime, the town's appropriation has mainly been expended on the popular issues of the day, due care having been observed in looking out for the respective tastes of old and young readers.

As remarked in last year's report, it has also been the aim of the Committee to secure at least one trustworthy work in every department of science and literature. By this means often teachers and students are enabled to procure special and minute knowledge at home, or without purchasing somewhat expensive treatises for themselves. The increase in numbers and frequency of the visits of this class of inquirers has shown their appreciation of the growing value of the library.

The first year of an important experiment has just closed. On motion of a far sighted citizen, it was voted at last spring's town meeting, that the library should be accessible daily, instead of twice a week. It has accordingly been opened on every afternoon except Wednesday, and on Wednesday and Saturday evenings. This arrangement was based on the statistics of past use. By far the greater number of visits to the library on Wednesday have always been evening ones, while on Saturday—the busiest day of the week—the applications for books are almost equally divided between afternoon and evening. The greatest number of books called for on any Saturday has been 178. The Saturday average is about 150 volumes. On other days the calls vary from 25 to 50.

It is the opinion of the committee that the present arrangement has fully vindicated itself. It has increased the patronage of the library, and could hardly be enlarged in its scope unless the increased expense were met by a proportionately increased appropriation. This may be needed when the books shall find larger and more accessible quarters, but is hardly required under existing circumstances.

This last mentioned consummation will lead to a solution of that vexed problem of every growing library—the catalogue question, and will also supply much needed room. The present quarters are very contracted. A few years ago the Committee prepared at a good deal of tronble, and at considerable expense to the town, a catalogue complete up to date of publication. It had been asked for in many quarters, but its sale was small; so small as hardly to justify the pains taken and the money spent. With a constant growth going on, it soon failed to cover the ground. Classified bulletins of all new books are regularly printed, but many have failed to notice them. The propriety of a supplement has been discussed, but past experience seemed to show that, with all its necessary imperfections, it would soon be outgrown. As the best possible substitute, the Committee have procured a desk with drawers for a card catalogue. This, of course, must be consulted at the library. It now contains virtually all of the books added to the library since the present catalogue was issued, and will at an early day be still more complete. The removal of the library to another building will necessitate a new arrangement and numbering of the books. When that shall be done, the feasibility of a new and complete catalogue, both alphabetical and classified, will present itself. Until that time, the Committee believe, the wants of the public will best be met by the monthly or quarterly publication of leaflets, containing the names and numbers of late additions, and sold for a few cents each, at a price just covering the cost of paper and composition. The Committee feel that they and visitors to the library owe much to the intelligence and courtesy of the librarian and her assistant, and would respectfully ask that the appropriation of 1890 be renewed for the coming year.
